BEACH BANDIT ESCAPES IN GUN BATTLE

Supervisors Refuse to Make Deal for Drilling on Tidelands

COUNTY WILL NOT ENTER SQUABBLE

Board's Decision Met With Applause from Plan's Opponents

Orange county will take no part in the squabble that has arisen over tideland or island drilling for oil at Huntington Beach. This decision was announced by John C. Mitchell, chairman of the board of supervisors, yesterday at the conclusion of a hearing on the proposal.

When Chairman Mitchell announced the board's decision, it was greeted by vociferous applause from Huntington Beach opponents of the plan.

A rumored motion that the county seek a lease on the state-owned tidelands oil pool failed to materialize after the hearing, during which T. B. Talbert, mayor of Huntington Beach, declared "there are some people who feel that they can stick oil derricks all over our beach and that we will just have to like it. We are just as proud of our public beach as is any community in the county, and are entitled to consideration."

Satisfied With Bill

Mayor Talbert said the people of Huntington Beach are satisfied with provisions of assembly bill 1684 which will permit tapping of the tidelands pool through directional or "whipstock" drilling from inland sites. He also pointed out that the people of the state had disapproved tideland drilling by an overwhelming majority at the last election, and that it would be necessary for the state legisla-

GROVE SALE ANNOUNCED

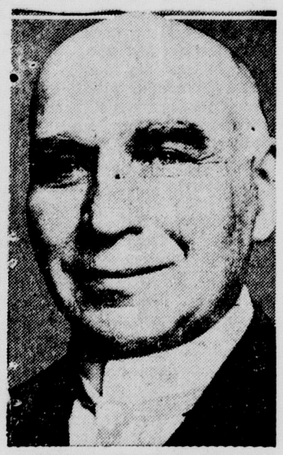

Purchase of 43 acres of the John H. Cook citrus estate near An[illegible], by E. D. White of Santa [illegible], for approximately $100,000 in cash, was anounced today.

Four weeks ago negotiations for the purchase by Mr. White of 23 acres of the ranch were completed. The other 20 acres were bought this week. The purchase of the property was strictly a cash deal, and is significant of the fact that business men in Orange county are confident that orange acreage is still a wise investment.

F. A. Youngbluth, a well-known Anaheim business man, has also recognized the value of investing in orange property and has purchased five acres of 14-year-old trees which is also a part of the Cook estate.

PROJECT FOR MUSEUM IS APPROVED

Steps Taken Today to Get SERA Help on Bowers Opening

A project for the equipment and opening of the C. W. Bowers Memorial museum on North Main street was outlined this morning by F. P. Jayne, of the State Emergency Relief Administration, and was to be placed before Mayor F. C. Rowland this afternoon for his signature.

Under this project, it seemed likely that work on museum cases and other equipment will be started within 10 days or two weeks. The papers were to be mailed by the local SERA to state headquarters this afternoon, and maferials and men will be available for museum purposes just as soon as the state authorities give their approval to the project. It is believed that approval will be given promptly.

The project as outlined by Mr. Jayne has the backing of the special committee appointed by Mayor Rowland Monday night. That committee, consisting of Councilman William Penn, City Auditor Lloyd Banks and T. E. Stephenson, chairman of the museum board, was instructed to cooperate with the SERA in securing a project.

The plan as approved in Santa Ana calls for an expenditure during the next three months of $2700 in labor and $400 in materials. Labor will include two carpenters, a cabinet worker, two painters, as well as clerical help in the opening of the museum.

SEE PAYMENT OF RANSOM

TACOMA, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Tacoma grew tense today as the city interpreted activity around the Weyerhaeuser home as indicating the family would pay $200,000 ransom for the return of nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser before the deadline tonight.

Retiring early this morning, the household from which the curly-haired lumber heir was snatched last Friday, was awake and stirring again by dawn.

John Philip Weyerhaeuser, father of the missing lad, was believed to be with J. Rodman Titcomb, uncle of the missing boy and mentioned as probable contact man. Titcomb and a man believed to be Weyerhaeuser, left the lumber family's home last night and did not return.

Their departure a few hours after the family received a registered letter, recalled that the kidnapers said in the ransom note, "you will be notified where to go when the time comes."

Mrs. Weyerhaeuser, mother of the boy, also left her home for an hour last night in the Tit-

LEADER SEES BREAKDOWN OF CODES

President Waiting for Crystallization of Public Opinion

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—The New Deal probed vainly today for means to meet the extraordinary problem presented by the supreme court blasting of NRA.

Officials assayed conflicting reports about preservation of code wage and hour standards.

Gratification over public announcements that many businesses would observe codes voluntarily was offset by private information of some moves to cut wages and lengthen hours. While refusing to speak for quotation, one key NRA officer predicted a general code breakdown.

Roosevelt Waiting

President Roosevelt, pursuing his own studies silently, was believed to be awaiting especially for two things; first, a consensus from both his administration and legislative advisors on how to proceed; and two, a crystallization of public opinion.

There was a pronounced impression that, under the decision, it would be extremely difficult to embrace NRA principles in any law; and so a constitutional amendment would be necessary, if the New Deal is not to alter its announced objectives.

FEAR NEW LOSS FROM SWELLS AT BEACHES

NEWPORT BEACH, Wednesday, May 29.—Property owners today were nervously watching the oceans for signs of ground swells that may spell untold loss of property and damage to the city's streets an the Pacific Electric right of way. An eight-foot wall of sand, 1000 feet in length, is being constructed along the ocean front between Tenth and Nineteenth streets as a precautionary measure.

So long as there are no ground swells, the extremely high tides are not likely to do any damage. However, the highest tide of this particular period is scheduled for 8 p. m. Friday, when it will reach a height of six feet and five inches The damage Monday night was the result of a tide with a maximum of five feet and six inches However, it was accompanied by huge ground swells.

GUNMAN ROBS STATION ON HIGHWAY

San Clemente Chief of Police Leads Speedy Chase Along Coast

A running gun battle between San Clemente police and a bandit who had held up a service station in Oceanside and was apparently heading for Los Angeles, awakened residents along highway 101 between San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano early today.

Abandoning his car after a spirited run north, the unidentified gunman fled on foot and combined efforts of San Clemente police and sheriff's men failed to locate him.

The holdup occurred shortly after 10 o'clock last night when the bandit entered the station, bought five gallons of gasoline, and at the point of a gun forced the station operator to hand over $28 in cash.

Shortly after midnight, a car answering the description given by the service station operator was seen speeding down the highway into San Clemente by Chief of Police Tom Murphine and Officer Earl Moore, who fired two shots at it. Neither took effect. The machine was traveling at a speed of about 75 miles an hour at the time.

The officers gave chase in their car, and soon were in a position to open fire on the speeding machine.

An exchange of shots took place, and soon after, at a point where the highway crosses San Juan Creek, the bandit abandoned his

RELEASE WON BY ARNOLD

James Arnold, holder of the now famous "gold courtesy card" issued by E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol, was freed on a writ of habeas corpus by Superior Judge Allen late this afternoon and ordered released from custody.

Judge Allen cited the recent appellate court ruling that a charge of exceeding the 45-mile state speed limit is not in itself sufficient cause for action, in ordering Arnold released.

PIONEER TALES

By the Old Timer

The first of a series of narratives having to do with the early life of Santa Ana and Orange county.

HELLO, folks!
This is Old Timer broadcasting.

You know this is all new to me. When it comes to hog callin' or yelling to my wife to sew a button on my shirt, or tellin' somebody to get the —— out of my watermelon patch, or talkin' right influential to my team when it was stuck in the mud and things like that—I had the trainin' to do it and didn't take a back seat for anybody. But to write things for a newspaper—say, boy! That makes me shrivel up like a dried prune.

However, the editors of our fine new paper, The Journal, hunted me up as the prize specimen of the old time down and outers and asked me to give their readers some stories about the early days of Santa Ana; and they said when they said early they meant 'way back, fifty years or more ago.

WELL, it so happened I could do that very thing, and I thought maybe I better try it. And so I am going to give you a lot of that early history of Santa Ana, back in the days when people wasn't scared to death of appendicitis and other new-fangled ailments, and et things because they liked 'em, and went places to have a good time and generally did. So if you will please excuse a plenty of

THE DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, May 29.—The Administration is quietly trying to placate labor leaders on the work-relief wage schedule of $19 to $94 a month.

The Laborites are up in arms over this low level and are putting the heat on their congressional friends to make it a public issue. This the administration is most anxious to avoid, since the question is political dynamite.

In an effort to forestall an open fight, Harry Hopkins has been conferring secretly with union leaders and assuring them that the announced work-relief wage schedule will not be allowed to undermine prevailing pay levels.

At one meeting with leaders of the building trades unions, Hopkins pointed out that the President's order specifically empowered Hopkins to set aside promulgated wage rates wherever he deemed that desirable.

In other words, the schedule is to be a sort of general yard-strick, not an ironclad rule. Hopkins also stressed the fact that federally financed public work projects are exempted from the work-relief wage schedule.

The implication of Hopkins's explanation amounts to this:

That in localities where labor is organized and can enforce its demands, prevailing wages will be paid. But where an opposite situation prevails, pay will be

ACTOR "BEATEN" BY DUMMY

Unscheduled Drama in Play

ORANGE, Wednesday, May 29. Struck on the head in a realistic but unscheduled bit of drama during the presentation of a one-act comedy here last night, Howard Barnes of this city today was suffering cuts and bruises.

Members of the Presbyterian Friendship chain were giving "The Dummy" at a church gathering.

Mr. Barnes, waiting in the wings, was the victim of poor aim and unappreciated strength by one of the performers. Stage action called for a dummy to be tossed out of a scenic window and the object struck him squarely on the head. He was reported improved today, however.

About 200 were present at the entertainment which featured "The Doll's House," a skit, in addition to "The Dummy." Cast of the skit was Betty Lee Smith, Colleen Hobbs, Barbara Franzen, Vivian Estes, Barbara Carpenter and Joyce Girton. Rachel Williams and Bertha Vestal directed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Clayton were heads of the committee in charge, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Green, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ahlman, Mrs. Eliza Flippen and Mrs. Lotta Brandon.

Cast of "The Dummy" was Mrs. Vernon Valentine, Mrs. W. A. Settle, Kenneth Stowell, Dick Leininger and Mr. Barnes.

Price Cutting Danger Cited by Leaders as Mark Downs Start

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Countless thousands of American employes today received the reassuring answer of "No!" to the question foremost in their minds—"Will our hours and wages be disturbed by the supreme court's NRA decision?"

From the country's far-flung industrial front, reports which poured into the crossroads of the nation indicated that numerous large industries were standing by their present standards of hours and wages, despite the high court ruling that legally the Blue Eagle was as dead as the dodo bird.

Concurrent with these assurances came warnings from industrial leaders that nasty price cutting might lead to a demoralization of business. Evidence that such a danger existed came from New York where some dealers slashed prices of popular brands of cigarets by about 2 cents a package. Price cutting also was seen in the toilet goods, liquor and book fields.

NEWSPAPERS TO FOLLOW NRA CODES

NEW YORK, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—A policy of continuing the provisions of the daily newspaper code until its expiration on June 16 was indicated today as the publishers' code committee announced plans for a prompt liquidation of the code authority at that time.

The code committee said that, regardless of the supreme court's NRA decision the code for the daily newspaper business, "by reason of the limitation on its life included in Article VIII, expires automatically on June 16, 1935."

OIL ALLOCATION IN L. A. DESPITE CRISIS

LOS ANGELES, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Federal authorities today awaited instructions from Washington officials regarding future policies involving the oil industry in view of the supreme court NRA decision.

While the central committee of California Oil Producers last night voted to empower Oil Umpire J. R. Pemberton, Chairman Ralph B. Lloyd and a sub-committee to allocate the daily output of oil production, independent oil companies in the Playa del Ray and Santa Fe Springs fields declared they intended to produce as much oil as possible.

DELAY STUDENT TRIAL AGAIN

Whether or not 14 Fullerton high school and junior college youths heeded the advice of Superior Judge H. G. Ames and retained an attorney to defend them in a $20,400 damage suit was scheduled to be revealed at 2 p. m. today.

Trial of the suit in which the 14 boys, along with 11 other college and high school students, was delayed yesterday when the 14, through their spokesman, Sam Miller, announced they would handle their own defense. Judge Ames advised them that they obtain legal counsel, and postponed the hearing until this morning at 9:30 o'clock. This morning a continuance until 2 p. m. was granted.

The 25 youths are being sued for $20,400 damages by Miss Genevieve Johnston of Fullerton, who charges that she sustained injuries which cost her an eye when the youths bombarded with tomatoes the automobile in which she was riding car and fled down the creek bottom.

Officers discovered five of their bullets had entered the rear of the car, and a sixth had blown out a rear tire. Both officers had emptied their revolvers at the bandit car, their bullets breaking the rear window of the car.

Two boxes of .32 calibre cartridges were found in the abandoned machine.

The sheriff's office received a call about the battle at 12:40 a. m. today and four deputies hurried to the scene. No trace of the bandit was found. Officers expressed a belief that the bandit had hopped a northbound freight train that pulled out of San Juan Capistrano shortly after the gun battle.

Stolen Car

The car used by the bandit was reported stolen in San Diego yesterday afternoon, and was registered to the San Diego Macaroni Manufacturing company. On his way north, the bandit had run through a federal immigration barricade near the Torry Pines grade. Immigration officers started in pursuit, and passed him while he was in Oceanside.

The Cantando club concert will be given the entire afternoon period alloted to the Orange county program, and the Elks quartet and other features will make up the evening program.

All arrangements for the day, including the program to be sponsored by Orange county, will be completed by W. J. Carmichael of Fullerton, V. D. Johnson of Orange, and George Raymer of Santa Ana, members of a committee appointed last night by George Kellogg, president of the associated chambers.

June 20 was selected as Orange County day at the suggestion of exposition officials who, in a letter to the associated chambers, said that on that date more time would be available for the presentation of an Orange county program at the Spreckels organ.

Time allotted Orange county for its official day was from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. Raymer informed members of the organization, however, that when officials of the exposition learned the Cantando club was being sent by The Journal as part of Orange county's program, they had agreed to extend the program period and grant from a half hour to an hour additional time both in the afternoon and evening.

In addition to arranging details of the Orange County day program, the committee appointed last night will have charge of arrangements for railroad and other accommodations for Orange county people planning to attend the fair that day.

sion and months of family illness have left Frank Carpenter, Vern's father, in circumstances where he must look to outsiders to assist his son. Mr. Carpenter has been employed during the past 18 months on the R. F. C., C. W. A. and the SERA, and is now on direct relief.

While a painting contractor in Orange county for 22 years, Mr Carpenter spent hundreds of dollars in efforts to cure his son's affliction. Vern was a patient at the Los Angeles Orthopedic hospital for two years.

Expensive operations failed to restore Vernon's walking, which was lost 11 years ago when his weight gradually began to increase to 370 pounds. The Carpenter youth now weighs 340.

GROUP TO HELP COUNTY FAIR EXHIBIT

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county offered its services today in helping Orange county to get the greatest possible advantage from its exhibition at the San Diego exposition.

The next meeting of the organization, at the Costa Mesa women's clubhouse June 25, will be devoted to developing constructive ideas along this line, according to Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa, vice president of the organization. Dr. Huston conferred last night with George Kellogg of Yorba, president of the Associated, and initial plans for the next meeting were formed.

Advantage Cited

Leaders who have been working on the project are convinced that one of the greatest advantages the county can attain from its exhibit will be through inducing returning exposition visitors to stop in the county and see the attractions of the world's valencia orange capital. With their interest in the county stimulated by the display at San Diego, tourists will be ready for an opportunity to see the county itself.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce will offer its services as a clearing house for ideas and suggestions as to how the county can carry out such a program most effectively. Dr. Huston pointed out that service clubs, women's clubs and other civic organizations have discussed the possibilities of such a program.

Plenty of Time

He urged that ideas developed in this way be brought to the next meeting of the Associated so that general discussion can start definite action. He pointed out that the exposition will be under way for many months and that the county will have plenty of time in which to carry out a successful program.

Members and guests at the next meeting will be given a boat ride around Newport Harbor so they can observe dredging operations, Dr. Huston said. The trip will start at 5 p. m. and the return will be made in time for the dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. Those wishing to make the boat trip should make reservations, he said.

STEEL WORKERS TO LEARN FATE SOON

Local steel workers on the city hall project will know within the next few days whether they have qualified for permanent employment according to V. W. Houghton, resident engineer for the PWA. The crew of 10 men went to work Monday morning.

They were given the chance to qualify after employment of outside steel workers was protested by the local men. Next week two crews will be selected to work five-hour shifts. This week one eight-hour shift is being used.

was called to the white house from New York to participate in the discussions.

Donald R. Richberg, NRA chieftain, still was holding conferences with many interested in the recovery law, seeking ideas and suggestions. Among those he arranged to see today was Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), author of the original law.

A committee representing 47 oil trade associations called upon the president to report its request for continuance of the oil code and to ask legislation permitting voluntary agreements within the industry.

Seek Convention

Four members of the house—Representatives Marcantonio (R., N. Y.), Schneider (P., Wis.), Lundeen (F.-L., Minn.), and Amlie (P., Wis.)—in a joint statement recommended a constitutional convention to change the constitution.

This suggestion of a constitutional change was getting more consideration as the hours passed by. There were indications that appeals for voluntary maintenance of code standards were not bearing full fruit. As to what sort of legislation would be proposed immediately, if any, there was no sign.

Action today was definitely out. Newsmen were told the president would not discuss NRA at his 4 p. m. press conference. It also was indicated quite clearly he does not intend to go on the air about the problem.

F. R. to Talk Later

All signs pointed toward a presidential statement late in the week, after he has completed the survey of the full effect of the supreme court decision. An inspection of 700 letters and messages received overnight showed a ratio of nine to one in appeals for a new NRA.

Coincident with a number of industrial statements that NRA labor standards would be respected, regardless of their lack of legal force, were some warnings against danger in a price cutting campaign.

Meanwhile, PWA announced certificates of compliance with NRA codes would not be required on contracts for construction of non-federal PWA projects.

WATER PROJECT STUDY SLATED

The next step to be taken by Orange county in furtherance of its flood control and water conservation project, presented for PWA approval, will be discussed Friday at 2 p. m. at an adjourned meeting of the board. B. A. Etcheverry, consulting engineer, who took the county project before PWA in Washington, D. C., and Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson, who accompanied him, are scheduled to meet with the board at that time.

Etcheverry and Thompson will report work accomplished in Washington, and will advise board members as to the next step to be taken.

BUDGET SENT TO SENATE

SACRAMENTO, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—The senate finance committee, after adding $12,400 to the Merriam budget, sent it to the floor of the upper house today with a favorable recommendation.

As approved by the committee, the budget totals $399,594,994, of which $47,300,000 is for unemployment relief.

An almost identical budget bill is awaiting passage in the assembly. The only difference between the two measures is that the house bill does not contain the increase added by the senate committee.

ture to enact new laws to permit the proposed lease.

That such proposed legislation probably would be defeated was indicated, privately, by Supervisor Willard Smith, who has just returned from Sacramento. Mr Smith said he had interviewed Senator Nelson Edwards and Assemblymen James Utt and Craig relative to the proposal. Orange county's senator and assemblymen, he said, would support such a proposal, but stated the majority of senators and assemblymen are definitely opposed to the plan.

Two Have Clash

Mayor Talbert and N. E. West, supervisor from the fifth district, who, it had been reported, would introduce the motion for the county to secure a lease on the tidelands pool, had a brief clash during Mr. Talbert's talk. Mr. West stated that the mayor of Huntington Beach had favored tidelands drilling during the recent election, and asked why he had changed his mind. Mayor Talbert countered with the statement, "You opposed it during the election. Why have you switched?"

Following the presentation of both sides of the question by Stuart M. Salisbury, attorney for the Gilmore Exploration company, seeking the lease to the tidelands pool, and by Mayor Talbert, and before a motion could be made, the supervisors adjourned to the board room. Following a brief discussion, board members returned and Chairman Mitchell announced the decision.

Lease Terms Told

Mr. Salisbury said that his company, which represents the Gilmore Oil company and the Jergens interests of Long Beach, is attempting to negotiate a lease with the state for the tidelands pool at Huntington Beach. He asked that the county grant his organization a lease to the pool which he said would not be binding upon the county unless the state deeded the tidelands to the county.

His company, Mr. Salisbury said, was prepared to pay the state a 20 per cent royalty at all times and increase it to 30 per cent when costs of drilling were returned. In addition to this the company would pay the city and county each 1½ per cent royalties at all times, increasing it to 3 per cent when drilling costs were returned.

In urging the company not to enter into such an agreement, Mayor Talbert warned that such action might result in financial loss to the county.

JURY CONVICTS STEINMETZ

NEW YORK, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Joseph L. Steinmetz, 22-year-old divinity student, was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree early today for the hotel room slaying of his 17-year-old bride, former Hollywood, Calif., high school girl. He faces a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison, although the jury "strongly" recommended mercy.

Steinmetz was accused of shooting his bride, the former Ruth Armstrong, and a priest, the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, when he found the former partly unclothed in the priest's room in the Knights of Columbus hotel last November.

WATER ACT IS FAVORED BY RIVERSIDE

The future of the amendment to the Orange County Water district act looked brighter today. The amendment, which would broaden the contractual powers of the county water district and give it certain rights of condemnation, apparently has earned the favor of water interests in Riverside county, it was learned today following a meeting of the board of directors of the local district yesterday afternoon in the offices of A. W. Rutan, legal counsel for the district.

The board does not feel that it is necessary at this time to send any delegates to Sacramento to work for the bill, which has passed the senate and been favorably reported by an assembly committee. The board may go to Sacramento, however, if stronger opposition develops. San Bernardino county interests have been opposing the measure.

Pioneer Tales

shortcomings from a literary standpoint, and just remember I am trying to give you facts regarding the early development of this wonderful city and county, I will do the best I can. All I ask is not to ring the gong on me if my articles get a little out of tune.

Notwithstanding the fact that my own experiences do not date back to the actual discovery and founding of the town by the late Hon. W. H. Spurgeon, as a foundation to my own stories I am go[illegible] a brief synopsis of those events which crystalized into the dusty, prosperous and optimistic town as I knew it first.

"UNCLE BILLY," as Mr. Spurgeon was always known by his townspeople, rode horseback into the territory which is now Santa Ana, through mustard as high as the horse, to a spot where the Court House and Hall of Records now stand, and pulling up under a sycamore tree enthusiastically communed with himself over the country which surrounded him. This initial visit was soon followed by the purchase of 76 acres out of the Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana, from which the original townsite of 24 blocks was platted, and went on record Dec. 13, 1870.

Mr. Spurgeon had already built a store at what is now the corner of Fourth and Broadway, and the English home had been erected on the east side of Sycamore street, which site is now used as a parking lot and is definitely marked by two immense pepper trees, still standing there.

THE little settlement was originally started in October, 1869, and enough settlers arrived to form a school district, officially known as Spring, a month later. Miss Annie Cozad was the first teacher.

Mr. Spurgeon secured a postoffice for the new town in 1870, and was himself appointed as postmaster, with a salary of $1.00 per month. In July, 1874, the Wells-Fargo Express company opened an office here, and from then on the town expanded more rapidly. Mr. D. M. Dorman had just completed the Santa Ana Hotel, at the corner of Fourth and Main streets, now occupied by the Otis building.

Nearly all the early settlers around the town had their own water supply, operated with hand pumps or windmills, but the need of a general system was constantly becoming stronger; so with his usual enterprise Mr. Spurgeon decided to take care of this deficiency. He sunk an 11-inch well 340 feet, using a large elevated tank for pressure and using a windmill for power. This system was inaugurated in June, 1873, and continued in use until 1890, when the city established a municipal water plant under a $60,000 bond issue, which has maintained ever since.

The Spurgeon water plant was located south of Fourth street, between Sycamore and Broadway (which was then called West street) in the rear of where the Spurgeon block now stands.

Santa Ana Lodge, No. 241, F. & A. M., was instituted Oct. 31, 1875, and the Odd Fellows followed on the 30th of the same month with Santa Ana Lodge No. 236.

The first paper, the News, made its bow May 15, 1876, under the vigorous if not sustaining influence of Nap Donovan. The paper was of great benefit to everybody except Nap, and rapidly went into an incurable decline, which proved fatal in a few short months—that is, to the paper. Nap himself, being filled with Celtic zeal and Southern California ozone, produced the Santa Ana Herald in October, 1877, which publication persisted for a quarter of a century under various managements, finally being merged with the Blade.

This same year, 1877, was also distinguished by the erection of the first brick building in Santa Ana, a one-story business room, built by Mr. Dodge, on the south side of Fourth street, near Bush.

EARLY in the spring of 1878 came the culmination of the hopes of all new towns, the addition of a railroad. The Southern Pacific, which for two years had made Anaheim its terminus, built on into Santa Ana, erecting its depot at Fruit street, which still stands there and is occupied by the Guggenheim company. The addition of the railroad supplied the struggling hamlet with immediate and increasing benefits, which engendered a bitter rivalry between it and the older town of Anaheim.

The census of 1880 gave the first definite information on the much mooted question of supremacy, as follows:

Anaheim township	1,469
Santa Ana township	3,024
Anaheim, town	833
Santa Ana, town	711

"Uncle Billy's" dream was coming true.

FROM this point on I will endeavor to take you through the long and interesting (to me, and I hope to you) story of the steady growth of this home town of ours, with its lights and shadows, its ups and downs, its few failures and many successes. From the days of vineyards, and corn and hogs and pumpkins down to the era of the greatest Valencia orange section of the world. From the days of the little old steamer Newport, staggering in and out over the treacherous and shifting bars at the mouth of Newport bay, to the final development of one of the finest harbors on the coast. From the transition of the little old dusty village to our modern and bustling city of today.

And if you follow these stories of mine, kind reader, I again request you to treat them with the consideration due to a nervous old codger, who is struggling to entertain you with the sweat of his feeble brain.

My next story will start with that period when Jake Ross was running the Herald, and will take you down the journey quite some, introducing characters and incidents which a good many of our citizens yet residing here will recall.

Until then I remain, because I can't remain anything else,

THE OLD TIMER.

SEAL BEACH TO SEEK $164,0 00 FOR PROJECTS WITH PWA AID

SEWAGE PLANT, BREAKWATER PROPOSED

New Water Works Also Desired by City as Plans Considered

SEAL BEACH, Wednesday, May 29.—Plans and specifications entailing an expenditure of $132,000 by bond issue and $32,000 by Public Works Administration, granted for the construction of a new breakwater, a sewage disposal plant and a new water works, are being drawn by City Engineer Victor W. Hayes. They will be completed and ready for presentation to PWA officials soon, stated Mayor E. J. Hugh today.

Present plans call for an $82,000 breakwater at the west entrance of Alamitos Bay. Bonds would take care of $62,000, while PWA funds would provide $20,000 of the cost.

The proposed sewage disposal plant would cost $52,000, $12,000 of which would be asked from PWA.

Bonds totaling $30,000 have been delegated for a new water works plant, but since the city does not own the property for the site of the new location, PWA money cannot be obtained. City officials are endeavoring to obtain this territory in order to assure an additional sum of $8000 from PWA.

At the bond election held in Seal Beach March 29, an overwhelming majority of 8 to 1 voted to expend $132,000 for these three major projects. SERA labor has been applied for.

LEGION LEADER TELLS STA[TE]

FULLERTON, Wednesday, May 29.—Referring to Legionnaires as "yesterday's soldiers, today's builders and tomorrow's guardians," Archie S. Closson, state commander of the American Legion, spoke before a large crowd in the Legion hall here last night.

"We realize that a nation travels forward on the feet of its children and therefore we have interested ourselves in the schools," he said, "so that we will not face our Maker and admit that we were the first generation to recede, to slip backward into the dark ages of the past."

Closson explained plans for the future of the Legion, telling of organization work with Boy Scouts, the junior baseball teams and the Sons of the American Legion.

Pointing out that members formed one of the greatest peace organizations on earth because they knew of the horrors of war, the state commander contended that the Legion was not a militaristic group. "The Legion believes in an honorable, upright peace, not peace at any price," he said.

Closson spoke before an assembly of high school students in the afternoon and was guest of honor at a luncheon at noon attended by city officials, Legionnaires and civic leaders.

Commander George Askey presided at the meeting and program last night. Guests were G. L. Van Eaton, Civil war veteran; Russel Graham of Whittier, C. H. Chandler, commander of the U. S. W. V.; Fred Chapman, commander of the V. F. W.; Ben Lieberman, commander of the Garden Grove post of the Legion; Hal Hevener, captain of Fullerton chapter, Sons of the American Legion, and Mayor W. L. Hale of Fullerton.

TWO CHANGES ON POLICE FORCE

Police Chief Floyd W. Howard announced this afternoon that two changes have been made in the local police force.

Claude Rogers, former chief of police, will become a traffic officer on half-time duty, while Jerome Stephenson, who has been working half-time, will go to work on a full-time basis as a relief officer. The change will be effective during the summer months, and perhaps longer, Mr. Howard said.

Claude Rogers was chief of police before Mr. Howard took office four years ago.

Advantages of this sanitary survey in unincorporated areas of the county were pointed out by Dr. Sutherland, who said that it would provide maps and plans showing sanitary and sewage facilities in all areas and would provide valuable data that could be used later in promotion of a modern sewage disposal system for the county.

CONVERSATION --- MEMORIES

'Lou Henry' Recalls Old Days

"Do you remember, you used to buy gum from my husband, back in '88?"

"Yes! And do you remember—"

An ordinary conversation, but one filled with interest and happy memories for Mrs. Mit Phillips, 1506 North Main street.

You see, Mrs. Phillips was talking with Mrs. Herbert Hoover. It was at yesterday's annual luncheon of the Women's auxiliary in Whittier college.

From far and wide came 230 women, old-timers of the Friends community, to eat in a college hall on the campus and discuss past years.

When Mrs. Phillips' husband opened the first drug store in Whittier, nine months after the town was started, Mrs. Hoover's father was an executive in Whittier's first bank.

"You can't get ahead of Lou Henry," the Santa Anan recalls her husband's frequent remark about the young girl who has since been the United States' first lady.

Yesterday Mrs. Hoover, who talked at the luncheon and later visited the Girl Scouts she organized a few years ago in Whittier, was very simply gowned in black silk with a wide white collar and black accessories.

TEACHER FILES SUIT FOR $50

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Wednesday, May 29.—Joseph J. Gebauer, Oceanside grammar school teacher recently dismissed by the school board on grounds of noncooperation, began a counter action yesterday by filing suit for $50 against T. J. Holt, member of the Oceanview school board, in Justice of the Peace Chris P. Pann's court.

Holt, scoutmaster for the district, is accused by Gebauer of having failed to reimburse him for certain sums spent on scout registration, uniforms and other equipment. Gebauer was in charge of the Boy Scout troop for two years.

PLAN FOR COUNTY SPEAKERS BUREAU IS DISCUSSED

Possibility of establishing a speakers bureau here which would provide entertainment for other Orange county communities if desired, was discussed at a meeting of the publicity committee of the chamber of commerce at James cafe yesterday noon.

Such a bureau would afford opportunity for exchange of ideas between Santa Ana and the rest of the county, with a view to bringing about friendly relations, according to Ed Hall, chairman of the committee.

Yesterday's session was the first meeting of the committee. Other plans talked about included means of attracting to Orange county the San Diego exposition visitors who pass through this region, and erection of a sign at the southern boundary of the county, announcing that this is the famous valencia orange district.

BOARD ASKING BOND BIDS

SUNSET BEACH, Wednesday, May 29.—Offers will be received for $44,000 worth of bonds at the meeting of the Sunset Beach sanitary board next Monday night. The bonds were voted several months ago to provide the city with a new sewage disposal plant.

Duke Hunt, Sunset Beach engineer, has completed plans and specifications for the project. However, it will not be started until fall. This is a part of the $92,000 PWA program for Sunset and Seal Beach on which SERA labor will be utilized.

SAINTS CLASH IN SPRING FOOTBALL TONIGHT

Column Left!

By FRANK ROGERS

Los Angeles, and U. S. C. in particular, is getting ready a brand new "welcome" mat for Jesse Owens, Ohio state's black record-breaker and marvel of the century on the oval.

Up at the Coliseum, where the Trojans entertain the Ohioans June 15, much planning is being done for Mr. Owens. With an eye to the box office, officials figure Owens stands a fine chance of breaking a pack of records and anticipates that several thousand of the neighbors will be on hand to have a look see.

So, they are paving the way for Owens.

If Jesse wants to run the 100-yard dash first, in order that he will have a real chance at a new mark, this event will be put first on the program.

And, if he'd rather shoot at a new quarter-mile standard—that number will be put where he likes it.

Not only is El Trojan bending over backward for Owens, but they seem to be filled with the fraternal spirit for the entire Ohio team. The Trojans, in order to give the visitors an even break, will limit their entries to the same number as the visitors.

Picking winners in the 500-mile Memorial race is foolish business, but if Dame Luck will climb up on the bench with us, we'll string along with Wild Bill Cummings, 1934 champion, in tomorrow's grimy grind.

Wild Bill does not always live up to his title, but figures that a steady, sane pace of 110 miles an hour will be sufficient to bring in the bacon.

He will be driving the same

Regaining their championship form, Huntington Beach's Oilers staged a ninth-inning rally for eight runs and a 9-2 win over Westminster at Westminster last night.

Pitcher "Chico" Sabella's home run in the fifth was the only score the Oilers could produce until the weird ninth. Two-baggers by Manager Joe Rodgers, Merv Lower and Pete Osborn launched a rally that sounded the death knell for "Fuzzy" Errington, Westminster's mound star.

Poor support by his teammates, who erred 10 times, discouraged Pitcher Earl Morrill of the Admirals, and Long Beach went down in defeat again, 7-3, at the hands of Olive at Long Beach.

Erwin "Baldy" Foltz, infielder, poled a long homer with none aboard for the Packers in the seventh.

Undefeated Stars Win From Anaheim, 6-3

PREBLE RAPS HOMER WITH DENNEY ON

Valencias Show Fire and Enthusiasm in Giving S. A. Gruelling Test

An Anaheim club with unlimited enthusiasm and real ability tried desperately to snap Santa Ana's winning streak in nightball, but the Valencias failed, 3-6, after putting Manager Bill Cole's Stars through their most gruelling test of the National league season at Anaheim last night.

George Preble's home run, a lightning grounder that went like a blue streak over second base and sailed between Outfielders Emmett Seacord and Jean Arroues in right center, scored himself and Tom Denney with the winning runs for Santa Ana in the fourth.

Pitchers Jim Coates and "String" McDonnell, toiling for their respective Stars and Valencias, each allowed nine hits, and all the runs both teams made were crowded into the fourth and sixth.

Stars Score First

Carrying out their usual custom of being the first to score, the Stars pushed across two counters in the fourth.

Rod Ballard reached first when Kramer muffed his grounder at second. "Doc" Smith singled infield, and Tom Denney filled the bases with an attempted bunt that was hit squarely and carried over the head of Shortstop Comstock. This was the opportune time for Preble to get that homer, but George gounded to second, forcing Ballard at the plate. Tommy Young hit an identical grounder to Kramer, who again tossed home, but the ball was a second too late to trap Smith. "Bomo" Koral grounded to the towering McDonnell in the pitcher's box, and forced Denney at the plate. Coates, who hits as well as he pitches, singled to score Preble.

Anaheim got back one of the runs in the same stanza on Charley Comstock's left-field double that brought in Fred Wiseman from second. Wiseman reached first on Young's error at third.

Sensational Sixth

The fifth served as a "breather" for a sensational sixth.

Denney, first up in the deciding frame, hit a high bouncer for a single. Then came Preble's circuit swat. The only Anaheim player to come near the sizzling grounder was Pitcher "String" and the ball was traveling so speedily past the mound that the 6 foot 7 inch McDonnell hardly saw it. Young continued the rally with a two-bagger to left field, advanced to third on Koral's grounder to McDonnell. Coates doubled to score Young, advanced to third on a wild pitch and came home on LeRoy Sears' infield single.

With the count 6-1 against them, Vic Ruedy's Valencias bunched a double and two singles for a pair of runs in the last of the sixth. They threatened again in the eighth on singles by Wiseman and Arroues. "Jerky" Jertberg, who chops at the ball, knocked a hot liner which Pitcher Coates batted down and tossed him out to start the sixth. Wiseman doubled to right and crossed the plate on Comstock's single to center. Arroues singled to right to score Comstock.

M'LARNIN TO QUIT, SAYS MANAGER

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Wednesday, May 29.—Barney Ross, the flashing-eyed Chicago clouter who doesn't rest easy without at least one world's fistic crown atop his raven thatch, perched himself back on the welterweight throne today with the distinction not only of outslugging the great Jimmy McLarnin but of being probably the Irishman's final conqueror.

McLarnin didn't take his defeat at the Polo grounds last night as bitterly as did his veteran manager, Pop Foster, who said his protege was through with the fight game after 10 spectacular years, but Jimmy was whipped with sufficient thoroughness to discourage much idea of making a successful comeback.

Charges Dempsey Biased

The veteran manager not only insisted Jimmy will hang up his gloves, in a heated statement after the fight, but delivered an attack on the selection of Jack Dempsey as referee, charging the former heavyweight king had disqualified himself by openly favoring Ross beforehand.

Although a large share of the crowd of 31,000 lustily booed the outcome, the decision of Referee Dempsey and the two judges, Abe Goldberg and George Lecron, was unanimous in favor of Ross, who regained the 147-pound championship after 15 bruising, bloody rounds that had the spectators in an uproar throughout.

In this observer's opinion, there was no doubt about Barney's superiority in speed, punching and all-around tactics, although the flashy Chicagoan was so weary after slugging it out with his rival all the way that he was barely able to stand up in the final round.

On the Associated Press score sheet, Ross took ten rounds, McLarnin four, with one even, although at least half a dozen rounds were so close that it was difficult to detect an advantage either way.

There were no knockdowns al-

FRONT DRIVES POPULAR IN 500-MILE CLASSIC

By CLAUDE H. WOLFF

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, May 29.—(AP)—The motors are roaring again at the famous old motor speedway here as America's greatest drivers careen around the bricks getting ready for the annual 500-mile race tomorrow. If anything, it's even a more colorful speed playground than ever before, made so by many brand new stream-lined cars, some of them capable of doing 160 miles an hour on the straightaways.

There are more front-drive cars than in several years. Incidentally, race day will be the tenth birthday of such type of speedster. The late Dave Lewis drove the first one here in 1925 and finished second.

The race will bring back to speedway popularity the eight-cylinder motor, which a few years back dominated the field but more recently gave way to the new type, high-speed four-cylinder job.

Miller Has 10-Man Team

The largest racing team in the history of the sport—10 cars—will roar its taunts to the masses. The speedsters have been built by Harry Miller, master motor engineer from Los Angeles.

The drivers and their mechanics have but few "bugs" to bother them this spring. Activity has centered around carburetion and better manifolding, with a view to stepping up the pickup in the sharp turns of the track.

Many old timers who are national figures of the roaring road will gamble their lives against the $100,000 in prizes. Wild Bill Cummings, 1934 national champion, will be there. So will Phil (Red) Shaffer, Cliff Bergere, Russell Snowberger, Lou Moore, Deacon Litz, Ralph Hepburn, Dave Evans, Wilbur Shaw and Louis Meyer. Shaw will drive his new self-designed Streamland, front wheel drive speedster.

Held To 42½ Gallons Gas

Mauri Rose, Herb Ardinger, Kelly Petillo, George Barringer, Rex Mays, Al Gordon and Doc MacKenzie—coast to coast sensations of the younger crowd of drivers—have fine cars with which to challenge the skill and daring of the veterans.

Cummings, in winning last year, established a record speed of 104.863 miles an hour. In doing

SERAPHS AGAIN NEAR LEAD

(By the Associated Press)

Los Angeles was within one-half game of the top of the Pacific Coast league baseball scramble again today.

"Lefty" O'Doul and his San Francisco Seals were instrumental in putting the Angels there, for they trounced the league-leading Acorns, 9 to 6, last night, while the Angels were taking Sacramento into camp, 7 to 2.

While this juggling for the top spot was going on in the Southland, Seattle was manhandling the Missions, 10 to 4, and Portland was doing the same to Hollywood, 11 to 3.

In Los Angeles Mike Meola with his spaghetti ball, held the Senators to nine hits, only two of which were for more than one base.

Marvelous fielding by Bill Cissell who handled 12 chances without a bobble, and two double plays, saved the day for Hobo Carson, who allowed Hollywood 14 hits. Gil English, with a double, a triple and two singles helped the Portland Beavers score their 14 runs on 12 hits.

The Santa Ana Elks kept their record clear to remain in a tie for first with the 20-30 outfit by trouncing the M. E. South Seniors, 4-1, in the curtain-raiser. Charles Hill's homer was the only run scored by the Methodists, although they collected six hits, as many as the Elks.

The First Nationals got off to a 5-1 lead against 20-30 in the second when they drove Pitcher Sam Francis to the showers with four consecutive hits. He was replaced by Jefferson, whose first offering was turned into a left-field home run by Walt Jordan, the bankers' ace pitcher.

1934 ELEVEN PLAYS 1935 GRIDDERS

Wide-Open Game Likely In Climaxing Event to H. S. Spring Drills

Football, long the favorite pastime in Orange county, returns to the sports picture with the holding of Santa Ana high school's annual "this year-last year" game inside the municipal bowl at 7:30 tonight.

Billed as a wide-open affair, with plenty of passing and end sweeps, the contest will be the first football the Saints have played after dark in Santa Ana.

Bill Foote, head coach, will direct the 1935 eleven, which will be attired in Santa Ana's regular red and white jerseys. Reece Greene, red-headed assistant, will be in charge of the 1934 players, clad in white jerseys with vertical stripes.

Reid Is Ill

Loss of 190-pound Bob Reid, left tackle who is recovering from a minor illness, will handicap next fall's varsity, but the "graduates" will be without the services of Halfback Bill Hawkins, who is passing up the game for fear of receiving a leg injury that would handicap him in the high hurdles in the special A. A. U. events at the San Diego Exposition.

Always confident, the "last year" squad will enter the game a slight favorite, but those who have watched the two outfits in drill believe the 1934 players are due for a severe setback. The 1935 crew appears to have a stronger line and a backfield that compares favorably with the 1934 ball-toters and blockers.

Billy Musick, 175-pound brother of Jim Musick of Santa Ana and Trojan grid fame, will be at fullback in the '35 lineup. Carroll Joy and Roger Dunning will start at half, Harold Short at quarterback. Short was an end last season.

Hamilton Plays

In the '34 backfield will be Capt. Waldo Smith, the speedy safety who returned a punt 93 yards for a touchdown against Fullerton last fall; Charles Meserve and Alvin Lamb, halves, and Byron Nott, fullback. Ray Hamilton, ineligible next fall because of the new C. I. F. age limit of 20 years, will divide time with Smith at quarter.

Capt. Erwin Youel and Bill Milligan, ends, will receive most of the passes tossed by the '35 eleven. Al Titensor and Madden Dietrich will mann the wings for the grads . . . Warren "Whitey" Mann, southpaw fullback, will be unable to play for next fall's varsity on account of a back injury . . . Tonight's game terminates several weeks of hard practice for the Saints . . . The nominal admission price of 25 cents should attract a crowd of around 2000 or more . . . Coach Foote believes this game will be the best spring exhibition ever played by his Saints.

ALVIN REBOIN FAILS TO LAND COACHING POSITION AT F.J.C.

John Arrambide, Whittier college star, was appointed Art Nunn's assistant in football at Fulerton Junior college yesterday by the Fullerton board of education. Alvin Reboin, Santa Ana, was one of the many applicants for the position. Reboin, who graduates from U. S. C. this year, also is seeking a post at Brawley and Chaffey junior colleges.

PASADENA, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Suffering from a recurrent side injury, Miss Jane Sharp, national women's indoor tennis champion, today had canceled a scheduled tour of the east and been ordered out of play until the fall.

Gas Allowance Cut

The cars must go the distance on at least 42½ gallons of gasoline and six gallons of motor oil, this year. They were allowed 45 gallons of gasoline last May and not one ran out of fuel. There is no change in oil allowance.

Louie Meyer will be after his third speedway victory here. He won in 1928 and again in 1933. Tommy Milton, Detroit star of a decade ago, is the only other driver to win the race twice.

ABAD LICKS ARMSTRONG

LOS ANGELES, May 29. (AP)—Looking back on a record of some 200 fights, Davey Abad, Panama fighter, today neared the end of his fistic career. Henry Armstrong, St. Louis Negro, battered out a 10-round decision over Abad last night.

though McLarnin's knees buckled under Barney's terrific barrages to the head and body in both the second and fourteenth rounds while Ross himself seemed in danger of slipping to the floor in the fifteenth, from the combined effect of his own weariness and Jimmy's final, desperate attempt to turn the tide.

Ross Stands Ground

Instead of simply trying to outspeed and outbox his rival as he did in capturing the crown a year ago, Ross stood his ground, absorbed a stream of left jabs that cut his cheek and nose, then waded in and outpunched McLarnin decisively in nearly every two-fisted exchange.

From the fourth round on, Ross fought with the handicap of a steadily bleeding nose. From the seventh on, he revealed afterward, he was further handicapped by an injury to his left hand but the challenger's remarkable stamina and newfound power, carried him along at a terrific pace until the last round.

Others we would like to see up among the contenders are Fred Frame, Wilbur Shaw and Floyd Roberts, who may be an unknown to you but to us was a grease spattered idol when he worked over his then "Grey Special" on the lot next to ours. That was about 1924, which might indicate there is some longevity among the heavy footed boys.

VOL. 1, NO. 25 — SANTA ANA, ORANGE COUNTY, CALIFORNIA. WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1935 — SECOND SECTION

COUNTY ASKED TO AID PROPOSED $6000 PUBLICITY PROGRAM

INDUSTRIES TO SUPPLY $5000 UNDER PLAN

Associated Chambers Hear Project Told by Howard Irwin

If the county board of supervisors would subscribe $1000, Orange county industries would add $5000 to a fund for county-wide advertising, Howard Irwin, Fullerton, chairman of the industrial committee of the Associated Chambers of commerce, told members of that group last night. Irwin made this statement in reporting for the industrial committee at the monthly meeting of the county organization, held at Midway City.

He said the entire amount would be spent in newspapers of the county for the purpose of acquainting people of the various communities with their industries. Necessity for the appropriation from the board of supervisors was pointed out by Irwin, who said that the industries will follow if some county-wide organization takes the initiative. The associated chambers, representing all communities, he said, is the logical group to take this lead.

Half Completed

Harry Welch reported for his committee on harbor development, saying that the present improvement program is 52 per cent completed.

President George Kellogg, who is also chairman of the highway committee, reported that progress is being made on the opening of Manchester avenue from Buena Park to the north city limits of Anaheim, and that contracts for the Santa Ana-to-Miraflores section of the same highway will be awarded soon. He also reported that the Santa Ana canyon road improvement program will be completed in July.

T. B. Talbert, Huntington Beach, for the legislative committee, reported progress on the proposed Orange county coast fish reserve and developments in the tideland drilling controversy.

To Name Delegate

George Raymer, secretary of the associated chambers, reported on the recent meeting of the tri-county advisory committee, and asked that a delegate be appointed to succeed George MacLeod, who has moved away from the county. President Kellogg will announce the appointment at a later date.

The meeting last night was held in the Women's club at Midway City, with women of the club serving a chicken dinner. They were Mrs. Vida Pryor, Mrs. Gale Dunston, Mrs. Harry Kingsbury, Mrs. Stella Johnson, Mrs. Bert Heath, Mrs. Margaret Pryor, Mrs. Jack Houlihan, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Davies, Mrs. Nita McKay and Mrs. Anna Van Steenburgh.

FLOOD CONTROL, WATER PROJECT ENGINEERS BACK

With nothing more to be done at present in Washington, D. C., in connection with Orange county's proposed flood control and water conservation project, B. A. Etcheverry, retained as consulting engineer, and M. N. Thompson, county flood control engineer, have returned from the capital, Chairman John C. Mitchell, of the board of supervisors, notified other board members yesterday. Etcheverry left immediately for Berkeley.

Mitchell revealed there is nothing more that can be done in Washington, D. C., until an application for financing the project can be acted upon favorably by the enlarged California office of PWA.

APPROVE EYE EXAMS

The board of supervisors yesterday approved the request of B. V. Curray, head of the county welfare department, to give eye examinations to 50 more State Emergency Relief association work applications. Curry said the department previously had provided 100 such examinations at a cost of $3.00 each.

SERA HEADS SEE MIRACLE

Petition 'Vanishes' at Meeting

A group of men sitting around a table at the State Emergency Relief Administration headquarters here yesterday afternoon saw a "miracle" take place. The group was the county SERA committee, and they had become somewhat jaded by routine business when the phenomenon startled them into close attention.

A petition bearing 42 names, urging dismissal of E. J. Rollins as foreman of an SERA grading project at the Newport Harbor High school, practically vanished, piece by piece, while they looked on.

The petition was presented last week by a group headed by Stanley Meric, representing a workers' club. A similar document was sent to the Newport High school trustees. The petitions said the workers objected to Mr. Rollins.

A letter from the trustees, signed by D. J. Dodge, president, started the vanishing act. Trinidad Calderon, whose name was on the document, had informed the trustees he did not sign the petition. Then Terrance Halloran, SERA director, spoke "magic" words, and 12 more names "vanished." He said investigation showed 12 of the signers never had worked on the job. Furthermore, he said, there are only 14 men instead of 42 now on the project, and only six of these signed the petition.

In view of the "fadeout" and information in the Dodge letter that Rollins' work is satisfactory to the trustees, W. W. Hay, SERA committee chairman, dictated a letter to Mr. Meric, telling what had happened to the petition, and saying that the board believes the project is going along favorably.

RECITAL TO AID STUDENT FUND

To swell the Santa Ana High school student loan fund, a benefit dance recital will be given by students of Miss Vera Merilyn Getty at 8 p. m., Saturday, June 1, in the Willard audtiorium.

Ninety pupils will appear in tap, ballet, acrobatic, and comedy numbers on the revue. Nye James Martin, talented youth, will sing several solos. As guest artist, the "Talent Tots" revue will present one of the Southland's most authentic Spanish dancers, Miss Lolita.

Yvonne Zlaket of Garden Grove, three-year-old student, will present popular songs and will give a tap dance.

Lola Marie Harmon will preside as mistress of ceremonies over the revue, which will present the following senior students: Velma Stroud, acrobatic dancer; June Tway, Mary Louise Leinberger, Lucille Lambert, Carolyn Wells, Mary Ellen Squires, Fredda Graves, Jerry Newson, Anita Hendricks, Jane Connor, Marlys Park, Maurine Waters, Eloise Jacobs, Lorraine Leavy, David MacMullan, Luella Swartz, and the Cizek twins, Gordon and La Rue, who recently appeared in the Spurgeon school operetta.

Hazel Nell Bemus will direct stage and lighting effects and a public address system will be loaned by Clyde Musgrave to aid amplification. Mrs. Janet Martin and her orchestra will accompany the revue.

THIS QUESTION IS UNANSWERED

When a man is discharged from a State Emergency Relief administration job, does he go back to work in a few days, and if so, why?

This question arose yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the county SERA committee while Charles Fallert, manager of the National Re-Employment Service, was conferring with the committee.

Terrance Halloran, SERA director, said such a thing has not happened for the past six months. In the past, 50 percent of the cases in which men were discharged resulted from misunderstandings, and both the worker and foreman were glad to forget about it, he indicated.

FCA TO ACCEPT FALLOW LOANS

The emergency crop loan office of the Farm Credit Administration, located in the State Emergency Relief Administration bldg., Second nad Broadway, has been authorized to accept applications for summer fallow loans, it was announced at the crop loan office today by W. V. Brady. These loans are to be made through the medium of a single application, the amount not to exceed three dollars per acre. This includes both fallowing and seed.

SEEKS $10,000 IN DAMAGE ACTION

Charges that storm waters had been diverted across her 160-acre ranch near San Juan Capistrano were made the basis of a damage action filed in superior court today by Mrs. Mae. E. Forster. She is demanding $10,000 damages; that a drainage ditch across the land of William Maag, the defendant, be filled to a level with other land, and that another drainage ditch, closed in 1931, be reopened.

SERA BALANCE HERE LARGE

In addition to an allotment of $260,000 from the federal government for the current month, the State Emergency Relief Administration has a balance of $84,208.32 in other funds, it was shown yesterday in the weekly report submitted at a meeting of the county SERA committee by Terrance Halloran, SERA director for Orange county.

A balance of $11,541.57 remains in the state bond funds allocated to the county, special county appropriations of $300 remain, while there is a sum of $47,366.75 as a balance of state bonds subject to allocation by the board of supervisors, but not yet apportioned, the report showed. In addition there is a sum of $25,000 set aside by the committee for construction of an Anaheim storm drain. This project has not been started, and in view of the anticipation that there will be no SERA labor for new projects, it is not expected to get under way soon.

SURPLUS SUPPLIES DWINDLING, SERA CHIEF REPORTS

Indications that the supply of surplus commodities throughout the nation is decreasing rapidly were seen at yesterday's session of the county committee for the State Emergency Relief Administration. Terrance Halloran, director, reported that distribution of such commodities is practically through in this county.

In the past these surplus supplies have been allocated to various counties for distribution through relief agencies. Mr. Halloran said there may be more allocations, but he does not expect large enough supplies for general distribution. Supplies on hand are practically exhausted, he stated.

Locally, however, he explained that an attempt will be made to secure surplus oranges to be exchanged with other counties for their surplus products.

20 SANTA ANANS AT CATHOLIC COUNCIL

Twenty Santa Anans attended the Orange county Council of Catholic Women's conclave yesterday in St. Boniface parish hall, Anaheim. Mrs. Ashby Turner of Santa Ana presided.

Reports of the recent diocesan convention in Los Angeles were given by Mrs. Rose Edwards, Santa Ana, and Mrs. May Le Vecke, Anaheim.

St. Boniface school children presented a program.

Miss Mary Workman of Los Angeles, first president of Los Angeles and San Diego diocese, gave an address on "International Peace."

BROTHERHOOD TO ELECT ON FRIDAY

Officers will be elected at the monthly meeting of the First Methodist church brotherhood to be held Friday following a 6:30 dinner in the church.

The Rev. Grover Ralston of Garden Grove will speak and the men's chorus of the church will sing.

Reservations are to be made by noon Friday by calling the church at 1300, or by contacting E. Beamer, G. W. Townsend, Tom P. McKee, S. S. Vogt or George E. Faires, committee members.

SERA PROJECTS IN AREA ARE DECLINING

Evidence that the State Emergency Relief Administration construction program in Orange county is tapering off for the summer was seen today. Only one new project was approved by the county SERA committee in session yesterday, providing for an $11,331 memorial hall for the Buena Park American Legion post. A possible supplemental allocation of $11,040 for June in Orange county was reported from state headquarters, but if this money arrives, it must be used on projects already under way.

The Buena Park project would be eligible for part of this money, the committee decided, and $1793 of the sum was earmarked for that job. The building program calls for $6547 in SERA labor and $4784 for material and supervision to be supplied by the county as sponsor of the job.

SERA Load Decreasing

The Legion building has been under consideration for some time, but it is expected that relatively few other new projects will be started here. William J. Tway, works division head, told the committee yesterday that because of the decreasing SERA case load, it will be difficult to man new works programs. Unexpected balances will carry the present case load engaged on work projects for 28 to 30 weeks, he said.

If the $11,040 supplemental allocation is made by the state, it must be expended for material on projects under way, and the committee yesterday gave tentative approval to supplemental projects of this sort by marking portions of the money for these purposes.

Museum Gets $400

Earmarking of the tentative allocation was as follows: Food for undernourished children in Fullerton and Orange recreation projects, $250; lumber and plate glass for the Santa Ana museum, $400; truck hire for the Newport High school grading project, $500; cement for the Batavia street storm drain project at Orange, $1240; cement for the Orange city park, $620; cement for the Santiago creek park, a county project, $1860; cement for flood control work on the Santa Ana unit of the Santiago park, $1240; pipe and cement for the Talbert Drainage district, $500, and cement for the Newport Heights Irrigation district, $1240.

WORK OF JANE ADDAMS IS TOLD

That Jane Addams' work was to make human beings out of those in the tenement district of Chicago was the opinion of the Rev. Perry F. Schrock when he spoke before a sociology class at Santa Ana junior college yesterday afternoon on the topic, "Jane Addams' Lives."

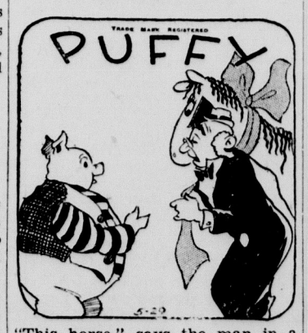

Miss Addams established the first social settlement ever to be erected in a large city, continued Dr. Schrock, when she opened Hull house in Chicago's tenement district in 1889.

HAZEL SCHWARM TO HEAD GIRLS' LEAGUE

Hazel Schwarm, junior, was elected president of the Girls' League at Santa Ana High school yesterday to succeed Mary Jane Belcher.

Miss Schwarm has been treasurer of the organization during the past year, is a member of Entre Nous and prominent in sports.

Lavonne Frandson was elected vice president; Mary Henderson, secretary, and Billie Johnson, treasurer.

"This horse," says the man in a voice filled with sorrow,
"Should run in the National Derby tomorrow."

But I have no jockey to ride my fine horse."

20 COUNTY MEN ARE GOING TO D.A.V. MEET

Twenty delegates from Jack Fisher chapter will leave tomorrow morning to attend opening ceremonies at the annual state convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World war at Santa Monica.

Harry S. Pickard will serve as state executive committeeman and attend a meeting of that group this evening.

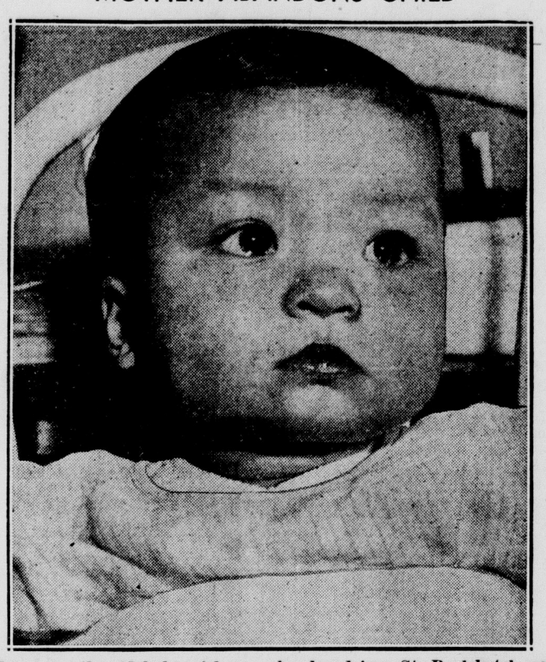

A parade honoring the Grand Army of the Republic will precede opening rites in memory of D. A. V. members who have died during the past year. Late in the afternoon, a report of department officers will be submitted. For service officers of the state, a rehabilitation conference will be held tomorrow afternoon.

A program for the coming year will be outlined Friday, with election of officers slated for Saturday.

On Friday's entertainment schedule are a trip to nearby movie studios, a grand ball at 8 p. m., and a past commanders' breakfast at 8 a. m. All who register at the conclave will be issued tickets for all concessions at the Ocean Park amusement zone. A side trip to Catalina Island also has been set.

Jules W. Markel, commander, and Van Leonard Brown, commander-elect, will head the delegates of Jack Fisher chapter, D. A. V., including Harry D. Edwards, Earl B. Hawks, George H. Gold, B. L. Chittenden, Dee Thatcher, Frank Wolters, C. W. Nussbaumer, and Jack Henle of Santa Ana; David R. Day, Fullerton; Ellis W. Gaddis, Anaheim; Louis A. Riehl, Tustin; P. A. Boone, Costa Mesa; Harry J. Starr, Placentia; and Claude Pullen, Newport Harbor. Alternates are F. J. DeSutter, Santa Ana; Earl D. Blackburn and Wm. P. Alexander of Fullerton.

MOTHER ABANDONS CHILD

This 9-months-old baby girl was abandoned in a St. Paul hotel room after the mother, Mrs. Violet Alcantra, 23, had paid a maid to mind her for an hour. The mother was arrested boarding a Chicago bus.

LILY BLOSSOM 28 INCHES LONG!

Local Man Raises African Plant In Big Way

When Joseph Krock, 1501 West Fifth street, raises lilies, he does it in a big way.

For the twelfth consecutive year the African lily plant at the Krock home has put forth a 28-inch long purple-black blossom, which is now on display at The Journal office.

This year the plant is producing a bumper crop of two blossoms. It stands four feet high and was imported by Mr. Krock from San Dimas.

$5000 DAMAGES ASKED FOR GIRL

Charging Donald Frederick Schneider, a minor, with negligence and carelessness in operation of his mother's automobile, Mrs. Elva Vetter, on behalf of her 13-year-old daughter, Maxine, has filed suit in superior court demanding $5000 damages. The suit names young Schneider and his mother, Mrs. Amanda Schneider, as defendants.

She charges that on June 13, last, when the Schneider youth was driving his mother's car in Anaheim, he suddenly stopped without giving any signal. The car in which the Vetter child was riding crashed into the rear of the Schneider vehicle, throwing the girl against the instrument board, which allegedly broke four upper teeth and drove them into the roof of her mouth.

733 PLACED IN FARM JOBS BY TWO GROUPS

Cooperation of the National Reemployment Service and the State Emergency Relief administration with Orange county farmers has resulted in sending 733 agricultural workers into the fields, it was shown yesterday by Charles Fallert, manager of the NRS, at a conference with the county SERA committee.

Terrance Halloran, SERA director, said a reduciton in the SERA case load consequently has resulted, and that it now stands at 4,300. Only seven per cent of this number remain who could possibly be classed as agricultural workers, he said. Only two such workers have been returned to SERA rolls after they had been dropped, Mr. Halloran reported.

Mr. Fallert said the morale of this group appears to have improved and some of the men are coming to his office, looking for jobs so they can get off the relief lists. There has been some trouble, he explained, when a few ranchers wanted to deduct transportation costs and the cost of compensation insurance from laborers' wages.

A statistical report by Mr. Fallert showed that in the past month his office has received 1,086 new applications for jobs. There were 1,488 renewals, such procedure being required each 30 days, while 705 persons who had been off the NRS lists for a year or more reregistered.

In the past month 233 persons have been placed on Public Works Administration projects and 72 on odd jobs, in addition to the 733 agricultural workers. Total placements for the month were 1,036, of which 707 were from relief rolls, the report showed.

Make This Heirloom Quilt

Flower of the Woods

PATTERN 5367

Flower of the Woods—and that's the starry anemone, of course—will make a quilt that any quiltmaker would be proud to show. The flower—made in a plain material—is set off by the figured material of the background. You could do the flowers in the same material throughout, or in a different color in each block.

In pattern 5367 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration of the finished block in actual size, showing contrasting fabrics; accurately drawn pattern pieces; an illustration of the entire quilt; three color schemes; step-by-step directions for making the quilt, and exact yardage requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Santa Ana Journal Household Arts Dept.

COUNTY RELIEF LOAD LOWERED

In the past three weeks the case load of the state emergency relief administration for Orange county has decreased by 822, according to figures released yesterday by Terrance Halloran, director. The drop for the week ending last Thursday was 173. For the previous week it was 200, and the week before that it was 449. Agricultural workers going into the fields account for most of the decrease.

There were 2479 persons on work relief and 1130 on direct relief on Thursday; 206 additional persons were on work relief but off the job at the time, while there were 367 cases reported as inactive.

Mr. Halloran said at yesterday's session of the county SERA committee that the decrease has lightened the work of the administrative staff so that night work has been practically eliminated.

Radio Roundup

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

After several sessions throughout the day, radio again turns its microphone eye towards San Diego for more "official opening" ceremonies of the California Pacific International Exposition. The KHJ release at 8 o'clock has scheduled Governor Merriam's invitation to the nation to visit the fair. A brief talk by Secretary of Commerce Roper, a 400-piece band, a mimic attack on the park by army fliers diving from 10,000 feet altitude and the possible appearance of several movie stars are other features also booked for the broadcast.

KFI-NBC has a like interval listed for the 9 o'clock half-hour, but details of this haven't been forthcoming from NBC's publicity headquarters.

We hold KHJ responsible for the statement that President Roosevelt's message, to be carried throughout the fair grounds by loudspeakers, will not be broadcast.

Arthur Krock, Pulitzer Prize winning correspondent of the New York Times, will speak over KFI-NBC at 5:45 o'clock on the subject, "Hope Versus Reality in Our Foreign Policy."

Burns & Allen at 6 o'clock, KHJ to CBS, is a new time for the popular comics.

"Music at the Haydns" is due to go off the air the first of July.

Don Bestor moves his band to Los Angeles for a stay at the Palomar. KHJ does the remoting, 9:45 to 10, and 11 to 11:30 p. m.

SAFETY! THAT IS THE SLOGAN OF THIS CONCERN

This group of Goodrich-Silvertown employees are stressing the word "Safety" for the holiday driver. The illustration here shows a pair of huge tractor tires and the following members of the staff: (left to right) Herman Gerke, budget assistant; Jack Waterman, service salesman; Orval Lyon, manager; Selden C. Fish, budget manager; Roger Hearne, service manager; Bob Lane, credit and operating manager; Palmer Stoddard, service salesman, and Scott Waddle, service salesman.

To further contribute to safe driving, the Goodrich Silvertown store at First and Broadway, is holding a no-money-down sale. These are days when safe driving is being stressed, and these are days when the Goodrich Safety Silvertown tires will give drivers protection, according to Orval Lyons, local manager.

"There is a Life Saving Golden Ply on Goodrich Safety Silvertowns and there is no reason why the motorist should not avail himself of everything offered in the way of protection," said Mr. Lyons.

"There is no delay in getting this service. Cars are equipped immediately. Our budget pay plan was adopted in March, 1934, and since that time our records show that 97 out of every 100 customers completed their purchase and easy credit requirements in about nine minutes.

"You can also get your home and auto radios as well as Goodrich Electro-Park batteries at our store, and on the same easy payment plan as tires are sold."

ELEVATOR TROUBLE

ON THE day of the President's bonus veto message, there was a long five minutes when it looked as if congress was going to bar him from the capitol after all.

It was all a matter of elevator service. For five minutes, Roosevelt was kept in front of an elevator which repeatedly whizzed past, indifferent to the frantic buzzing of secret service men.

They thought they had taken precautions against such delay. They had given instructions that the operator of the private elevator should, on hearing a triple buzz, discharge all other passengers and immediately wait upon the president.

When the president arrived, a secret service man buzzed vigorously three times.

But something went wrong. The operator made three non-stop trips from subway to house floor, letting the president cool his heels until an irate bodyguard dashed down to the subway and caught the elevator before it could get away again.

THE LAW

DEPARTMENT of Justice officials are shaking their heads in amazement over the proposal advanced by one of their own district attorneys for bringing a Chinese to justice.

A dispute between two Chinese became a cause of alarm to Peirson M. Hall, U. S. district attorney for Los Angeles county. The dispute was over the alleged sale of a woman by one to the other. The more culpable of the two had fled to China to escape the clutches of the law.

Hall began burning up the wires to Washington, demanding action, declaring a tong war was impending. Justice officials said that ought to be the business of local police, but asked Hall what he would recommend.

He urged that a department of justice investigator be dispatched promptly across the Pacific to bring the Chinaman back to California. After bringing him back, Hall proposed court action to deport him.

RIVALS

THERE is an intriguing human interest story behind Senator James P. Pope's sudden flop to the president's side on the bonus issue.

The reason given by the big, bald Idaho democrat for reversing his vote on the Patman bill was that he would not stand for being intimidated by the veteran's lobby.

But there was more to the action than that.

Pope is secretely envious of the fame of his world-renowned Idaho colleague, Senator Bill Borah. In the two years he has served in the senate, Pope has labored mightily to down the standing Washington joke, "Who is the other senator from Idaho?"

"Where Pope's republican predecessors were content to remain background figures, he has pushed himself assiduously to the front.

This he has attempted to do in two ways: (1) by invading Borah's field as a foreign affairs authority; (2) by siding with the administration when Borah differed.

Pope's labored efforts to set himself up as a foreign affairs expert have made little impression. But his repeated differing with Borah on spectacular votes has—particularly in Idaho.

When the president singled out Borah—out of all the 531 members of congress—to quote in his veto message, the word went around in the senate: "Watch what Pope does."

And Pope did not disappoint them.

PINKED

KINGFISH LONG just loves to bait Senator Kenneth McKellar. But sometimes the pigeontoed Tennesseean repays him in kind.

Huey was waxing sardonic at McKellar's expense when the latter interrupted to retort: "The senator had better quit nagging other senators and the President of the United States, and get down to doing some work on his job which the people of Louisiana sent him here to perform. It would be better for them and better for the senator if he did so."

"I hope," replied Huey mockingly, "that the senator will not try to put me to work. That is something I have tried my very best to keep from doing all my life."

"The senator has certainly succeeded in that aim," McKellar shot back.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

MICHAEL MacWHITE, genial minister of the Irish Free State, went to the senate the other day anxious to hear Huey Long, whom he had never seen before. He spotted a man with aggressive manner, upturned nose and curly hair, waited for him to speak. But he said nothing. Finally MacWhite found it was New Jersey's extremely conservative and extremely silent Senator Barbour . . . Colonel Harry Roosevelt, presidential cousin and assistant secretary of the navy, enjoyed himself in Hollywood recently. He was photographed alongside Ginger Rogers, and made the sagacious remark: "The movies are not simply a question of finding a pretty girl to stand before a camera." . . . When the Junior New Dealers sent 300 members of congress invitations to their charity ball, they found that every one of them was to be out of town that night . . . Members of the house anxiously seek to avoid being recorded as absent. One day last week the chairman by count found that only 51 members were present. Announcing "no quorum," he instructed the clerk to call the roll. By the time the 534 names were called, many had scurried into the chamber so that the roll showed 257 members to be present. The names of "absentees", numbering 172 were ordered to be "spread upon the record."

LET CONTRACTS FOR FEDERAL BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, May 29. (AP)—Contracts have been awarded for construction of 25 of 55 new federal buildings in California for which funds have been made available by the Public Works administration.

The procurement division of the treasury department today said the remaining 30 buildings were progressing rapidly through the planning stage. Eleven of these, in the lost laggard class, at present are ideas on the drawing boards of architects. The remainder are at various stages of advancement.

Present indications are that several other California cities, not on the list for which funds already have been provided, may obtain new postoffice buildings if house leaders carry out their plans to appropriate $40,000,000 or $45,000,000 additional for use in a federal construction program. This proposed appropriation would be included in the second deficiency appropriation bill.

Eleven cities will obtain buildings for which plans are now being drawn. These include: Anaheim postoff

WANT AD HEIRESS

By ROB EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

FRAN CAREY, stenographer, found an old-fashioned locket on the corner of Third and Cedar streets. She advertises it without results and then, after a few months forgets about it in the thrill of falling hopelessly in love with WARD QUENTIN, charming suave young man whose newly opened real estate office is across the hall from where she works. NINA MARKHAM, her roommate, intuitively dislikes Ward.

What Fran does not know is that an old-fashioned locket had been "lost" at Third and Cedar by Harriet Raleigh, eccentric wealthy old woman and that Miss Raleigh had so made her will that the person who found the locket would inherit $6,000,000. The terms of the will were known only to Miss Raleigh and her attorney, tall, blond young CHRISTOPHER ABBOTT.

When one of Abbott's copies of the will is stolen, he suspects ELLEN SPENCER, Miss Raleigh's housekeeper, and her dissipated brother, JAY. He warns Fran to guard her locket, though he will not tell her why, and advises her against persons who may seek her friendship. Although he does not say so, Abbott suspects Ward's motive in marrying Fran but realizes that he is himself too much interested in her to be unprejudiced toward her lover.

Abbott is right. Ward is the tool of the Spencers. He has hoped to victimize Fran, marry her, help her collect the $6,000,000 then contrive a fatal "accident." Only LAEL HUBBELL objects to the cold blooded murder plan. She is Ward's mistress (though ostensibly his secretary). He loves her, not Fran.

Two days before Fran and Ward are to be married Miss Raleigh dies. Next day Fran is told by Abbott that her locket, after all, is not the one Miss Raleigh had "lost." When Fran tells Ward, his only thought is to avoid her. The next day—their wedding day—she receives a note from him saying that he has had to leave town at once by air . . . that his mother is undergoing a serious operation.

Fran postpones the wedding. She tries to wire Ward at Fairmoore, Ia. (where he said his mother lived). But there is no Fairmoore, Ia. Neither does Ward wire her as he had promised. Saturday night, Sunday and Monday pass without word from him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"Did you hear from Mr. Quentin yet?" the phone girl at the Sedgewick asked Fran as she came into the lobby Tuesday morning.

"Oh, yes," Fran lied glibly. "He phoned me last night." The girl was off duty at night—a man took her place—so she wouldn't know.

"How is his mother?"

"Worse—much worse. He—has to stay there a little longer, and be with her—"

The phone girl was very, very sorry. She hoped Mrs. Quentin wouldn't die, because she supposed if she did, that would put off the wedding again, wouldn't it? Fran said she didn't know, and moved to the elevators as quickly as she could.

She Lies Again

The second time that day she had lied. The first time was to the druggist, who had asked her the same question. Fran had answered it the same way, hating herself for lying, but seeing nothing else to do, because to admit that she hadn't heard from Ward was becoming too embarrassing.

Saturday night, all Sunday, all Monday. Now it was Tuesday. Nothing yet. Not a phone call, not a telegram. Lael Hubbell was not in the office—at least she hadn't been when Fran was in the drug store booth phoning her. Three calls she had made in the booth, one to Ward's office, one to the telegraph office, and one again to the long distance operator. She might have made them from the Sedgewick, but she preferred not to. The phone girl was too inquisitive.

A few minutes after she reached the apartment, she had to lie again for the phone was ringing. Martha Pierce. Martha wanted to know, as everybody else seemed to want to know, whether she had heard from Ward. Three telegrams today, and a long distance phone call, she told Martha, and Martha was satisfied.

The bags were no longer in the living room, although two of them were still packed and locked. The packed ones were under the bed and the suitcase was in the closet in the bedroom.

Now Fran went into the bedroom, dragged the dressing case and hat box from under the bed and took the things out of them. She did it slowly, and when the bags were empty, put the contents in her drawers. The peach beside the green crepe suit which negligee was hanging in the closet was her wedding outfit. These she moved farther back out of her sight before she closet the door.

At 5 o'clock, the phone rang and a quick thrill ran 'hrough her, but when she answered it, she had to lie again. Someone else from the office wanting to know whether she had heard from Ward When she went into the kitchen to see what she could find for dinner for herself and Nina, she was wishing that Sunday morning she had not started to lie.

A Sorry Dinner

On the kitchenet shelves were some eggs she could scramble, some bacon, a can of pea soup, and a can of peaches. They would have to do for dinner, because she wasn't going again to the tea shop around the corner where she and Nina ate occasionally. Last night two waitresses had come to their table and asked whether she had heard from Mr. Quentin. Gossip traveled so fast. The butcher, the baker, the druggist—everybody in the neighborhood of the Sedgewick seemed to know that Ward's mother was ill.

Nina came in at quarter after six. The girls greeted each other casually, as usual, but Nina's quick eyes saw at once that Fran had heard nothing. That nothing had changed since this morning when she went to work. She helped Fran put the dinner on the card table in the living room, and they ate it in silence. Later they cleared the table together and washed the dishes, still wthoiut anything to say.

When Fran was putting the last dish away, the telephone rang, and she turned to Nina "You answer it Please. If I have to go to that phone again—tell whoever it is, Nina, that I have heard from Ward."

Nina went to the phone and from the kitchenet Fran heard her lie, too. Well, Nina wouldn't mind lying for her. No matter what happened, she couldn't go to that phone again. that phone again . . .

"Like to go to a movie?" Nina asked when she came back to the kitchenet.

Go to Movie

Fran said she didn't want to, and then she said she might want to if they went down the back stairs so she wouldn't have to go through the lobby. So the two girls started out down the back stairs which opened into the alley. They continued through the alley for several blocks, and turned out of it only when they reached the street of the neighborhood moving picture house.

Neither of them enjoyed the show, although it was a good one. The screen to Fran was a blur of black and white, where occasionally she picked out the face of a pretty girl, and a too-handsome man. Words came from their mouths, but she wasn't interested in the words, nor in the music which made her nervous, nor in the dramatic story. She was glad, though, she had left the apartment. Sitting there, looking at the phone was driving her crazy. And she wasn't staying up tonight until dawn. As soon as she got home she was going to bed. If the phone rang, the bedroom door would be open. The bell would awaken her.

Nina was tired, too, too tired to give her attention to the picture. Last night she had stayed up with Fran—by the phone. Together they had waited, and not once had it rung. All day she had been worrying as she was worrying now, as she would worry until Fran heard something from Ward Quentin. Damn the man, anyway; What was the matter with him? Why was he doing this? Unless he had been hurt, he had no excuse. And there had been no plane accidents. Both she and Fran had studied the papers carefully since Saturday looking for accidents. An auto crash from the plane to his mother's house, or to the hospital? They wouldn't hear about that, of course. . . .

Asks Nina to Call

When the show was over and the girls were in front of the theater, Fran had a request to make. "Would you call Lael Hubbell for me, Nina? At her apartment? I've called so much they know my voice."

Nina went into a pay phone in a nearby candy shop and dialed the number Fran had given her. Lael wasn't in, however, and Fran received the news stoically.

"Want me to call the telegraph office?"

"No— that's the last call." They walked on home in silence. When they were in their bedroom, Fran turned suddenly to Nina.

"Does it look funny to you?"

"It does look funny, I don't mind telling you. He should have wired or called."

"That's what I think. He could have found time. I've been excusing him because, well, because I thought he was so busy he couldn't find time to wire. But he could have. He could have written out a wire and given it to somebody to send for him." Fran stuck shoe trees into her pumps and dropped them heavily on the floor of the closet.

"What are you going to do—if you don't hear at all?" Nina's voice was very soft, almost a whisper. Her eyes were on the ring on Fran's left hand.

"We could move, couldn't we? We could find an apartment some place else."

"Sure we could. We could move tomorrow—if you want to." Nina was struggling with the tears that rushed to her eyes.

Needs a Job

"And then—" Fran went on slowly, "I'll have to get a job. I haven't much money left. I've spent almost everything I had in the bank—"

"Not your old job?"

"No, a new one. Some place where nobody knows about—Ward." She hesitated over his name, but finally she pronounced it. It came strangely to her lips, like some foreign word that was difficult to say. Always before it had come so easily, so gayly. Ward, Ward, she repeated to herself for discipline. Ward Quentin. She wanted to say it aloud again, but she didn't want to frighten Nina. Her left thumb touched the ring he had given her, twisted it a little, a habit she had acquired lately in her nervousness. With the same thumb and little finger, she removed the ring and dropped it on the palm of her right hand.

As she walked over to the dressing table, she thought—or perhaps it was only imagination—that the stone seemed dull this evening. There was hardly any shine to it.

"I think I'll feel better with it off," she said simply as she put it in its white satin box, and placed the box where she had found it . . . next to the old fashioned locket. However, she didn't close the drawer immediately. She stood in front of ti for some time, looking down at the locket.

"Did it ever occur to you, Nina, that Ward might have been more interested in Miss Raleigh's locekt—than in me? Mr. Abott told me to be careful, you remember, and when he told me the locket wasnt' the right locket . . .'" She shut the drawer quietly, but didn't turn around .

Tears Gather

Fresh tears gathered in Nina's eyes, but she let them fall down her cheeks unashamed. "I've been thinking about that too . . ." Thinking about it! That was all that she had thought about, but it took more courage than she had to mention it to Fran. And now Fran had brought up the subject herself. Fran was suspicious, too . . .

"I think I've been pretty much of a fool Nina, but I'm not being a fool now . . ."

"And you don't . . . love him any more?"

"I don't love him tonight, and I think I'll feel the same tomorrow. I hope so . . .

"How can you change so quickly, anyway? Loving some one one minute and despising him the next. Am I a little insane?"

"Not insane. Sane, darling . . ." Nina didnt' try any longer to check the sobs that came to her throat.

POOR FELLOWS DYING? HARDLY

SOMEBODY suggested the republican party would do well to adopt the slogan: "Don't cheer, boys; the poor fellows are dying."

He was referring to recent calamities that have beset the democratic party.

The "don't cheer" part of it is fine; the rest of it is bunk. The "poor fellows" aren't dying. On the contrary, they have set about to rebuild that part of their structure torn down by its own weakness. They are attempting to salvage—and will—much of the sound timber that remained after the hurricane struck in the form of two far-reaching decisions of the supreme court wherein the codes of the National Recovery Act, as well as the provisions of the farm mortgage moratorium act, were invalidated.

Smart politicians aren't going to cheer. Others will, and still others would like to, but they know something of the temper of the people. They know something of the good that has been worked by the NRA and other measures fostered by the New Deal.

It is encouraging to see the spirit of good sportsmanship and fairness that instantly manifested itself on the part of the great business concerns which, at the outset, imagined they were ruined by NRA. Many of them are clinging voluntarily to some of its most radical mandates, even though the administration announces it will make no attempt longer to enforce the codes.

The "poor fellows" aren't dying. They are stripping themselves for action. They are ridding themselves of some of the millstones that have held them back. These include many of the unsound measures adopted in conjunction with the NRA. It is to be hoped the administration will find a way to rid itself of a lot of its undesirable camp-followers while it is in the process of general rehabilitation.

With this done, the New Deal should emerge stronger and better fitted to accomplish its purpose. The snipers and pot-shooters have much to do before they tear it down. This applies to Herbert Hoover, in case he doesn't know.

SPOONING THE FOOD

THE June issue of The California Citrograph tells a new story to illustrate the value of cooperative effort. It professes not to know the source of the parable, which follows:

A tire man died and went to heaven (believe it or not). Upon being received by St. Peter, he asked to be shown to his old competitors of the tire business. He was told that each group of people in the same line of business lived together; therefore it was an easy matter to go to their district and see all the tire dealers at one time.

Upon seeing them he was surprised to find that they were very thin; one could almost see through them. Just at that time dinner was being served, and to his astonishment platters of delicious foods were placed before them and before anyone was seated an angel came and strapped a long iron spoon on each arm. This spoon was strapped around the wrist and biceps, making it impossible to bend the arm. As a result they could only look at the food.

Our friend then went to another section where lawyers lived, and to his surprise found them all fat and healthy. While he was there dinner was served, and an angel strapped a similar spoon on each arm in the same manner. To his surprise he found that each lawyer dipped his spoon into the food and FED THE MAN NEXT TO HIM.

Returning to the tire group, he asked an old competitor why they didn't do the same thing, to which he replied, "What, I'm starving and I should feed that dirty crook next to me?"

Santa Ana tire dealers are asked not to take umbrage and Santa Ana attorneys not to feel unduly flattered. We're reprinting the story with no reference to either group, but just to bring out Citrograph's moral: Cooperate or starve.

OUR YOUNG ARTISTS

ORANGE COUNTY cannot do too much to show its appreciation for the distinction which its musicians have brought us.

We should be particularly proud of the younger artists who are not only providing a high class of musical culture, but also are attracting favorable notice to our communities.

Two young musicians among those who are forging ahead are Miss Olive Elleanor Schweitzer, 13-year-old pianist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Schweitzer of this city, and John Hart Stout, also 13 years old, an Orange boy who is doing exceptional work on the violin. Miss Schweitzer has just won for the second time the first prize in her class at the Festival of Arts in Los Angeles. Three years ago she won the Welsh Eisteddfod contest at Los Angeles. Young Mr. Hart will compete at the Eisteddfod contest next Saturday.

The Orange County Students orchestra under direction of W. G. Axworthy, will tell Orange county's musical story at the San Diego fair on Orange county school day. It should be an inspiring one.

IMMENSITY OF DUST STORMS

IF you have wondered just how much earth was moved in the recent western dust storm, you might be interested in the estimate submitted by A. F. Turner, of Kansas State college.

Mr. Turner says that if a 96-mile line of 1½-ton trucks could be put to work hauling 10 loads apiece daily, it would take them over a year to haul back to western Kansas the dirt that was blown over to the eastern half of the state. Altogether, he says, there would be 46,500,000 truckloads to be moved.

Putting the thing in that form helps us to realize the terrible destructiveness of the storms. You don't need to use your imagination very hard to understand that a lot of good farm land must have been ruined to provide those 46,500,000 truckloads of dust.

NEW YORK Day by Day
by O. O. McIntyre

The telephone, considered by many civilization's greatest boon, often becomes life's most serious irritation in the Big Town. Of inestimable value in emergency, it nevertheless becomes an instrument from which the busy man must shrink to survive.

The most ingenious defenses are built up to turn the telephone caller away without offense. For instance, should someone try to call up J. P. Morgan or a person of similar importance, he finds himself in a maze of buck-passing that really becomes ludicrous, yet no suggestion of slight is implied.

Prominent men who are married often have their telephones listed in names of their wives. This is known to their intimates, who are thus able to reach them. There are many in apartment houses whose phones never ring. The operator instead takes the name and number of the caller.

Call slips are immediately sent up and the recipient may call those to whom he or she wishes to speak. Then, of course, there are the telephone enthusiasts—such as Rex Cole, who not only answers every call but installs private phones for his individual use in the homes of intimates.

Theodore Dreiser is in Hollywood for the summer but not to write for the movies. He is on another sort of writing assignment. He has been the most conspicuous spurner of movie gold. Once he listened and professed to have become so outraged when he saw the finished product he offered back all the money paid to scrap the picture. That could not be done, but he will never, never make another try.

The sidewalk cafe, catching its second wind, is far more numerous this summer than last. Every nook and cranny blooms with a few tubbed trees and several brightly covered tables. The larger places—Chatham Walk, Park Lane Gardens, etc. — have been augmented by the largest of all, the former sheep fold, surrounding the Tavern on the Green in Central park. The old Claremont, refurbished, on a sweep of the Drive, suggests some of the popular places in the Bois. And then there's the Fifth Avenue's Amen Corner bar near Washington arch.

The flock of grazing sheep that once ranged the South meadows of the park, with the patriarchal shepherd like a figure out of a Bible land scene and magnificent collie, a gift of the elder Morgan, offered a pastoral vista that was the city's last touch with rural simplicities. I used to stop occasionally to chat with the shepherd. At that time, befitting his role, he had never been to the theatre or ridden in an auto and was devoutly religious. He was a ringer for Edwin Markham.

One notices, too, a thinning of the sun-down walkers who made a circle or two of the graveled path of the reservoir a vesperal hour rite. Andrew Carnegie, an unfailing regular, of course, is gone and George M. Cohan has been out trouping for a year as has Bert Lytell, both reservoir addicts. Edna Ferber was often seen as were Fannie Hurst, Rockwell Kent, Howard Chandler Christy, Steffanson, the explorer, and it was probably the only place where at rare intervals Mrs. Fiske was seen in public. But firemen are always there—several of them at all hours of the day. It's their exercise and promenade ground.

The most romantic of the older taverns is the Brevoort — now a freshly painted battleship gray with a green facade. It still maintains a concierge platform and a director in cutaway graces the foyer with a continental scatter of jackknife bows. Until a few years ago it had only a dinky push-button elevator. Nearly every famous American novelist and those from abroad have tarried there. Its tucked-away registers would reveal signatures of William Dean Howells, Edith Wharton, Hugh Walpole, Hillaire Belloc, Mark Twain, Booth Tarkington, Harry Leon Wilson, Meredith Nicholson and such moderns as Dreiser, Lewis, Hemingway, Nina Wilcox Putnam and Arthur Somers Roche. It admitted well-mannered dogs long before the European-minded Ritz Carlton broke down the canine resistance that once afflicted most smart New York hotels.

Talks to Parents
By Brooke Peters Church

GENERAL CONVERSATION

A child naturally wishes to talk about the thing in which he is interested, and the chances are that he will bore his listeners to death with long descriptions of school doings and movies which he has seen. The supper table is apt in many families to be the scene of heated argument of this kind: "Sam, you are monopolizing the conversation; now let's talk about something interesting to us all."

In the forced silence which ensues while everyone racks his brain for a suitable topic, two of the other children fall into a discussion of a moot question of their own. In desperation mother leaps into the breach with, "How did business go today, John?" which immediately centers conversation about the parents and leaves out the children.

It is a serious question, this matter of table talk, and one which parents might well consider. The child is not the only one who talks about his own affairs. If the parents stopped to think they would realize that they tend to do the same thing.

There is no better place to teach children the art of conversation than the meal where the family is together and at leisure. It is not, however, a thing which they can learn entirely by example. Father and mother cannot hold a dialogue on their own affairs and then expect the children to turn out to be interesting talkers. Nor, for that matter, can they hand the table-talk over to the youngsters and hope that practice will make perfect.

Either way the art of conversation is neglected, and the exchange of ideas made exclusive and one-sided. It is for parents consciously to guide table-talk into lines of general interest, encouraging the children to take part as soon as they too have something of general interest to offer.

Feeling Well Today?
By Dr. Iago Galdston

PSYCHOTHERAPY

Psychotherapy is defined as treatment through influencing and regulating mental and emotional reactions. To the layman psychotherapy means treatment of the mind and at times treatment of the soul.

There is an odd resistance to psychoterapy, at least when it is administered under that title. The person who would think nothing of a diseased liver, a bad heart and the like, is inclined to consider himself stigmatized if he has spent any time in a "mental hospital." This is a most unfortunate prejudice.

Psychotherapy, when sandwiched in between large segments of straight medicine, or when administered in "unadulterated" form, is a valuable therapeutic agent. It is being ever more widely appreciated and more widely applied.

Still, many an individual who today suffers "the tortues of the damned" and who make the rounds of physicians, specialists and medical and surgical clinics, could have his sufferings relieved if he would but consent to and accept psychotherapy.

Also, because of the promotion and opposition to psychonanlysis, the impression is widespread that psychotherapy and psychoanalysis are synonymous; that psychotherapy calls for an inquisitorial probing into one's past.

True, psychonalysis is a valuable technique of psychotherapy. Behind it stands a most important school of psychiartic thought. But, as will be willingly affirmed by the leading psychoanalysts, psychoanalysis is far from the only useful form of psychotherapy. Nor do all cases require this long drawn out and rather expensive form of therapy.

For a large number of cases it would suffice to have what are called psychologic talks in which the history of the patient is scrutinized, the symptoms are reviewed and their probable causes analyzed. Reassurance and suggestion are methods of psychotherapy which also have proved of definite value.

What Other Editors Think

COLLINS PROTESTS
(Orange Daily News)

Congressman Sam Collins of this district has entered a protest against the administration's proposal to limit employment on the recently authorized four billion dollar works project to people now on relief rolls. Collins justly points out that thousands of citizens who have been able to stay off relief rolls through their own resources or through the aid of relatives or private charity, should not be passed over when they are in urgent need of work.

It seems wholly logical that need and not status would determine the right of applicants to work on public projects. While a relief status is evidence of the need of work, regulations should be sufficiently elastic to provide for those who have been successful in keeping off relief but who are in actual need of employment.

REPATRIATING FILIPINOS
(San Francisco Daily News)

San Francisco's representative, Richard J. Welch, is to be congratulated on passage by the house of his bill providing for free passage to Manila of some 15,000 Filipinos now stranded in California without employment.

There is no coercion in this bill, which would merely remove jobless Filipinos from our already glutted labor market and return them to their island homes in cases where they were willing and ready to go. They could be sent in army transports at a federal expense of $12 to $15 a piece, or less than it would cost to maintain them on relief for a single month.

The News Washington correspondent sends word that Senator Hiram W. Johnson will now take up the Welch bill and put it through the upper house. This should assure its passage.

TRADING
By Mary Graham Bonner

"Let's gather around my general store," said Top Notch, "and trade. We'll all get everything together that we own and we'll make exchanges."

Big Chief Eagle and Booming Voice and a number of others helped Willy Nilly in fixing up a trading post near Top Notch's store, and soon the trading began. They traded arrow heads for baskets of berries, syrup for beads, bright belts for nuts. Back and forth went the trading and sometimes the Indians traded what you would have thought they would have wanted to keep and the Puddle Muddlers did the same.

Christopher Columbus Crow traded the best of all—keeping everything that was bright and shiny that would give him pleasure later on. On the whole the trading was even; each one getting pretty much what he wanted.

So the Indians stopped in Puddle Muddle, playing their games, dancing their dances, trading, riding, racing, just as their great, great great grandmothers and fathers had done. But at last it was time for them to leave for the pow-wow where they were going to join other Indians in a huge celebration.

They dressed themselves up in their finest costumes once more, painted their faces, wore magnificent feathers and before long were ready to go.

The Puddle Muddlers hated to see them leave because the Indians would not have time at the end of the pow-wow to come back again. But this had been something they would never, never, never forget. How lucky they were!
